

Wednesday 01 June, 2005

Top Stories

Father arraigned on charges he clubbed coach

On a day when the father of one of the players appeared in court for allegedly beating softball coach John Crovo with a baseball bat, the Sacred Heart Academy softball team played its first game Tuesday since the attack on May 17.

Crovo was not in attendance at the game that featured cameramen from all four Connecticut television stations, a host of other photographers and reporters and an estimated crowd of 300.

Full Story

Aaron Flaum/Register Photo gallery

Left: Pat Labbadia III, attorney for John Crovo. Right: Lawyer Hugh Keefe and Mark Picard outside court in Meriden Tuesday.

- Previously in the Register
- More high school sports